5. FINANCIAL RISK MANAGEMENT

The Türk Telekom Group is exposed to financial risks such as liquidity risk, currency risk, interest rate risk and counterparty risk.

Within the framework of the strategy to minimize liquidity risk, financing is raised from different regions (The Americas, Europe, the Gulf, Japan, China, and Turkey) and a diversified pool of investor groups (commercial banks, international financial institutions, official export credit agencies and bonds) with long-term maturities. This strategy allows the Group to have access to long-term financing on competitive terms, by eliminating any dependence on a single geographical region and investor group.

With regard to the Eurobonds issued by Türk Telekom, the Group actively monitors the price and yield dynamics of these bonds, which are tradable instruments in the secondary markets, in order to formulate optimum cash management strategies on a total return and cost basis.

As a result of long-term credit terms for investments and diversified funding sources, Türk Telekom carries liabilities in foreign currency. Due to the net liabilities being denominated in foreign currency and the fluctuations in foreign exchange rates, the company may be exposed to currency risk, which may have an impact on its financial statements.

By planning foreign currency cash flow, Türk Telekom can minimize the negative impact of currency risk on its financial statements. With respect to the fluctuations in the value of the TL against hard currencies, the Company has a hedge position of USD 1.918 billion, details of which are provided in the footnotes to its financial statements. In addition, Türk Telekom holds a significant portion of its cash assets in hard currency as a natural hedge against currency risk.

In addition to the aforementioned derivative instruments, for management of the interest rate risk, Türk Telekom entered an interest-rate swap position equivalent to USD 450 million, details of which are provided in the footnotes to the financial statements. Together with the use of fixed interest funds such as bonds, Türk Telekom reduces its exposure to the floating interest rate risk.

With regard to its financial assets, Türk Telekom maintains a position to minimize counterparty risk in accordance with the framework of the limits and diversification policy applied to the other parties. Türk Telekom carries out the hedge transactions regarding financial risks within the framework of the guidance and authorizations set by the Board of Directors.
